Thank you for your inquiry into Southern Folger's comprehensive Technical Training School for correctional staff, architects, designers and consultants who need to know more about detention equipment.

Southern Folger offers an in-depth training class on Southern Steel and Folger Adam brand high security detention products, including swing and sliding door locks, electrical controls and miscellaneous hardware. These classes have been developed for facility personnel and detention design engineers, architects and consultants. No prior lock or keying experience is required for these classes. The classes are conducted at our training facility in San Antonio, TX with instructors that have many years of experience in our industry. Our graduates have told us that it is a worthwhile investment for people who work with or specify these highly specialized products, at any level of expertise. One attendee commented: "Very informative: Even after working on equipment for many years."

Classes are held Tuesday-Friday at Southern Folger Detention Equipment Company in San Antonio, Texas, beginning Tuesday morning at 8:30a.m. Certificates are issued upon completion of the seminar. Attendance for the entire class is mandatory to receive the certificate of completion.

Each seminar is limited to a maximum of 15 students - early enrollment is strongly encouraged!
