Thank you for your inquiry into Southern Folger's comprehensive Technical Training School for correctional staff, architects, designers and consultants who need to know more about detention equipment.

Southern Folger offers an in-depth training class on Southern Steel and Folger Adam brand high security detention products, including swing and sliding door locks, electrical controls and miscellaneous hardware. These classes have been developed for facility personnel and detention design engineers, architects and consultants. No prior lock or keying experience is required for these classes. The classes are conducted at our training facility in San Antonio, TX. Instructors have many years of experience in our industry. Ample time is included in the class day to be sure that all questions are completely answered. Our graduates have told us that it is a worthwhile investment for people who work with or specify these highly specialized products, at any level of expertise. One attendee commented: "Very informative: Even after working on equipment for many years."

Classes are held Tuesday – Friday each quarter at Southern Folger Detention Equipment Company in San Antonio, Texas, beginning Tuesday morning at 8:30 a.m. Certificates are issued upon completion of the seminar. Attendance for the entire class is mandatory to receive the certificate of completion.

Each seminar is limited to a maximum of 15 students - early enrollment is strongly encouraged!

The cost of the training class is $1,250 per person per class. Lunch is provided on training days; however, all other meals, lodging and transportation are not included in this price. A list of local hotels is enclosed. If you book La Quinta and ask for the Southern Folger rate, you will receive a discount; call 1-800-531-5900 or book online at www.lq.com. (Include code SFOLGER).
